

REPORTER

Cotton T-shirt by Clu. Denim jeans (worn as shorts) by Levi's. Makeup colors: Magic Khôl Eyeliner Pencil in Black, Prisme Again! Powder Blush Quartet in Smiling Brown, and Rouge Interdit Shine Ultra-Shiny Lipstick in Coffee Shine by Givenchy. Hair: David Gardner. Makeup: Spencer Barnes. Manicure: April Foreman. Photographed by Stephen Danelian. Fashion editor: Kelly Atterton. Details, see Credits page.

ALLURE'S FACE

Taylor Swift When Taylor Swift was 11, she delivered a tape of herself singing karaoke to every office on Nashville's Music Row, hoping for a record deal. It didn't work. However, the 18-year-old has turned each snub, ex-boyfriend, and crush into a career—her debut album sold more than three million copies, and her latest CD, Fearless, came out last month. Swift may have missed her senior prom, but she's not complaining: "My life has gotten awesome." Lots of your songs are about high school. What will you sing about now that you've graduated? Well, rejection never stops, and that's my favorite thing to write about. Guys being complicated and sending mixed signals? That never stops. Your phone is kind of breaking up. I'm on the tour bus. I had one day back home, but I'm on the road again. Any artists you're dying to work with? I had this dream that Kanye West called me and said, "I wanna rap on one of your songs." Then I woke up and was really mad that it was just a dream. Has fame changed you? I don't pick up blocked calls anymore. I think everyone from my hometown passed out my number at frat parties. I got so many prank calls. You'll either miss a call from someone famous or from a sleepover of screaming girls. Besides that, I've tried not to change anything else. —HANNAH MORRILL